The Inner Clock

Our body functions differently during the day than it does during the night – as do those of many organisms. This phenomenon, referred to as the circadian rhythm, is an adaptation to the drastic changes in the environment over the course of the 24-hour cycle in which the Earth rotates about its own axis. The circadian rhythm affects our sleep patterns, our metabolism, hormone levels and blood pressure. For elucidating how this biological clock works on a molecular level, Jeffrey C. Hall, Michael Rosbash and Michael W. Young were awarded the Nobel Prize in Physiology or Medicine 2017.
