Accreditation for the 72nd Lindau Nobel Laureate Meeting

- #LINO23 with focus on Physiology/Medicine: 25–30 June 2023
- Accreditation for participation in the Lindau Inselhalle
- Programme overview in the Lindau Mediatheque
- Public Livestream for selected programme sessions

Media representatives can still register for the 72nd Lindau Nobel Laureate Meeting (Physiology/Medicine) until 15 June. Just about 40 Nobel Laureates have confirmed their participation in the meeting. They will play a major role in shaping the programme from Sunday, 25 June, to Friday, 30 June 2023, and will exchange ideas with almost 600 Young Scientists representing around 90 nationalities.

The agenda includes current issues such as diversity in science, artificial intelligence in medicine and the impact of climate change on health will be discussed. The Next Gen Science Sessions will give Young Scientists a stage to present their own research.

Structure of the 72nd Lindau Nobel Laureate Meeting

The programme starts on Sunday, 25 June at 13.30 hrs CEST, with an opening ceremony and musical accompaniment by an ensemble of the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra. The following reception will provide the first opportunity for Young Scientists from all over the world to exchange ideas with each other and with the Nobel Laureates. At 15.00 hrs, a panel discussion on the topic of diversity in science will kick off the scientific programme – with Martin Chalfie, Emmanuelle Charpentier, Christiane Nüsslein-Volhard and Harold E. Varmus as well as Young Scientists Rasha Shraim und Marwa Shumo.

This will be followed by two eagerly awaited Lindau premieres: Frances H. Arnold, 2018 Nobel Laureate in Chemistry and co-chair of US President Joe Biden's Council of Advisors on Technology and Science, will give her first lecture in Lindau. Finally, Morten Meldal, 2022 Nobel Laureate in Chemistry and 1986 Lindau Alumnus, will bring the opening day to a special close.

On the first evening, media representatives will have the opportunity to get to know other journalists and the Lindau Nobel Laureate Meetings' communications team at a press reception.
